New England Institute of Technology Announces Teach-Out Agreement for St. Joseph’s School of Nursing Students

East Greenwich, RI - New England Institute of Technology (NEIT) is pleased to announce that the university has developed a teach-out agreement with St. Joseph’s School of Nursing to provide a seamless transition for students affected by the recent closure. Under the agreement, NEIT will admit St. Joseph’s students into its accredited Associate in Science in Nursing degree program.

NEIT’s Director of Nursing, Darlene Noret states, “New England Tech is pleased to have the opportunity to support St. Joseph’s School of Nursing students in meeting their academic needs. NEIT will do its utmost to ensure a smooth transition for these students. The NEIT community will always remember St. Joseph’s as a school of excellence and is excited to assist the students in achieving their career goals.”

Nearly 60 enrolled or admitted students are impacted by St. Joseph’s closure and will be admitted into NEIT’s nursing program. NEIT offers state-of-the-art simulation labs and an experiential learning model that prepares students for a career in nursing. Clinical and laboratory experiences complement classroom learning and graduates are prepared to work in a variety of settings. Fall classes begin September 30, 2019.

To ensure a smooth admissions process, New England Tech is waiving all application fees and tuition deposits and has a dedicated staff of financial aid and admissions professionals prepared to meet individually with St. Joseph’s students.

“This agreement is a product of a cooperative relationship between NEIT and St. Joseph’s School of Nursing,” stated Steven H. Kitchin, Vice President for Corporate Education and Training. “We have worked diligently to avoid some of the challenges that the closure of other higher education institutions in New England have recently faced. NEIT will do everything in its power academically and financially under this teach-out agreement to accommodate St. Joseph’s students.”

St. Joseph’s students are encouraged to contact Jeffrey Norman, NEIT’s Admissions Officer, for detailed information regarding their transition at 401-780-4170 or by email at jnorman@neit.edu.
